cigarette in the room where he was 12 years ago, when his family's house was burnt down; everyone has left, but he can't take it... PHOTO: CRISTINA SODI, as told to Adriana Venturini I was 12 years old, and I'd snuck out of the house after my parents were already asleep. They knew something was wrong. They said that they'd tell me the next day. And they did tell me, but it was a lie. I wasn't really going to school, but to meet my friends, whom I really didn't know very well. I'd been thinking about suicide for a long time, and I almost acted on it. I'm scared of animals, and I wanted to be with them. My father asked me: "What can I do to prevent you from killing yourself?" I showed him my knife in my backpack. He went white. Then he forced me to take a shower. He didn't want me to go back to bed. He told me my dad was waiting for me outside. I started thinking what could happen next - things could go wrong, and I could end up dead. I threw up, and my father forced me to get back
